

CURRICULUM VITAE IN BRIEF

CHRIS D. KALOGEROPOULOS MD, PhD, FEBOphth

Professor of Ophthalmology

Faculty of Medicine, School of Health Sciences, University of Ioannina, Greece

President of HSSOII

1983: Diploma of Medicine, 1991: Title of Medical Specialty in Ophthalmology and PhD in Ophthalmology

Thereafter, Research Associate (Ocular Inflammations) at the University Eye Clinic of Ioannina, Research Fellow at the University Eye Clinic of Geneva (Basic research in retina) and Retina Fellow at the University Eye Clinic of Bonn.

Since 1992: Academic career in the University of Ioannina and in 2015 elected as Professor of 1st rank (Full Professor of Ophthalmology).

Four times President of the Hellenic Society for the Study of Ocular Inflammations and Infections (HSSOII)

Clinical and Scientific activities:

Surgeon Ophthalmologist and Expert in Medical Retina and Ocular Inflammations(including surgery of uveitic cataract and glaucoma, immunology and infectiology, new therapies for the complications of ocular surface inflammations along with the use of regenerative medicine for the restoration of ocular surface disorders).

Head of Ocular Inflammation Service in the University Hospital of Ioannina

Many publications in International and Hellenic scientific journals and invited speaker in many Hellenic and International Ophthalmological Congresses.

Organizer of several Ophthalmological Congresses and instructional courses. Participant in various clinical multicenter trials.

Participation in advisory boards for the recommendations and guidelines creation for new treatments in retinal and uveal diseases.

Contribution to undergraduate (Ophthalmology) and postgraduate (lectures and doctoral theses) education in the University of Ioannina and others Universities.